HON. ALBERT COLE
Mayor of City of Lynn

HARVEY S. GRUVER
Superintendent of Schools

Football players just don't report for football, get equipped and trained and then on the weekend play in beautiful Manning Bowl. It isn't as simple as all that. Some persons with foresight and the uncanny talent for carefully planning a fine recreational program which the high school youth of our city enjoy, work hard for many long months to make all this possible, to facilitate real American Life for the youngsters out there who are giving their all.

Primarily this football you see out there is a municipal function. It is a particular concern of the Mayor, Albert Cole, an ardent enthusiast in high school football and an exponent of an uninterrupted recreational program for the school children of Lynn. He gives every measure in favor of high school athletics his generous consideration, and has co-operated wholeheartedly with school officials to make this bustling fall scene the really wonderful sight that it is.

He cannot, however, directly pilot the affairs of the Youth of Lynn, but he can confidently entrust to the care of his two staunch friends, Fred C. Mitchell, Principal of Classical High School, and Harvey S. Gruver, Superintendent of the Lynn Public Schools, the responsibility of carefully guiding the academic and athletic destinies of our youth. These two educators are experts in their chosen work. They know well enough the emotions and impressions of the high school student. They know well enough the importance of a carefully programmed athletic schedule, and the absolute need for it, and to this end they work shoulder to shoulder to guarantee every mother's son an American's chance in America, where only such democratic activity is possible.

Defending Champions Square-off As Classical Seeks Revenge For Only Defeat Last Season

Peabody sticks its neck out tonight as it peeks in and around the portals of Manning Bowl, for tonight they play a team which is still smarting from the beating they got from Peabody last year. Yes, sir, just examine the record. Lynn Classical lost one game last season and that was to Peabody, 6 to 0.

And that's how the story goes, and that is why Classical is out to knock the Tanners off; to get revenge and also to start the 1941 season in the true form of defending Champions. It must be remembered at this point that Classical won the Eastern Massachusetts Interscholastic football championship last fall, by merit of its nine victories and one defeat in ten games (including English High forfeiture).

It must also be remembered at this point that the State Championship is an issue of none too little dispute. Boston scribes like to split the honors between Everett and Classical. Let us again examine the record. Everett in nine games, won seven, tied one, and lost one to Classical. By the percentage system adopted by the Boston sports writers, and also by sixth grade arithmetic, Classical leads by a wide margin, or to quote the records of the Eastern Massachusetts Interscholastic Writers Association, with which yours truly is ignominiously affiliated, Classical has a 2.8 points margin, which is as good as a mile. So be it.

The point we're trying to make is, that as far as this program and North Shore sports writers are concerned, Classical enters Manning Bowl tonight as defending champions. It's their first game, and honestly they really look like defending champions, the modest, cautious type out to augment their fine record of 1940 at no risk to the crown which looks so darn good on them.

But on the other side of the Peabody-Lynn Boundary, the Tanners hold that Peabody is the sole claimant to the title. After all they were undefeated and what's more beat both Classical and English. However, it must be remembered that the Classical schedule carried a preponderance of Class

A opposition, and though the Peabody schedule was no feather pillow it lacked in Class A combats, most of its tussles being with Class B or C teams.

Peabody however, is the undisputed defending Champion of Class B, which makes tonight's game a battle of Champions. Peabody's particular headache is that its Class B campaigning is over for when last heard from the Eastern Mass. Writers had pushed Peabody into Class A.

Peabody opened its season with a Class C breather, Amesbury, last week under lights at Peabody. The Tanners, though bench-heavy with material, looked sluggish, but managed to slough through for two tallies to handily set down the lighter Amesbury eleven. The Tanners were unimpressive as would be any other team (Amesbury included) playing its opener after only a few days training. However, they've had a taste of battle, and the sweet taste of victory, they're on their way, have ironed out a few difficulties, which is more than can be said about the untested Joyceclan.

Joyce should have a good ball club. He has some excellent veteran material. His young replacements look heavy and agile, and have been displaying no mean talent in the practice sessions. It has been a problem however to put a starting ball club together, but with a nucleus which includes Capt. Gaspar Urban, Boley Danciewicz, Mecca Simorowski, Tom Brown and Ernest Savory the problem has been a pleasant one. There are also the younger McNulty brothers, but Ray McNulty is nursing an injury and may be benched for tonight's game.

The names in the Peabody line-up are not strange to Lynners. Coach Bill Seeglitz has for his team captain the versatile Al Surman, who plays at tackle and does the bulk of the kicking. He was All-Scholastic in 1940 and mentioned for similar honors the season previous and in all probability will knock off similar honors this semester. With Surman are the veterans, Lawrence, Mannien and Houghton.

THE NEW RULES

By EDDIE DOOLEY

THE FOOTBALL rule changes this year, like a crème de menthe frappé, are short and sweet. They are easy to remember, and while apparently insignificant, will have marked effect on the game. Usually when changes are made in the mandates covering the game, there is quite a howl from coaches whose pet ideas are not part of the innovations. This time, however, almost all the football mentors in the circuit put their stamp of approval on the work of the rules committee.

This year, a team can make as many substitutions as it wishes, and the same player may return to the game in the same period in which he was withdrawn. Off-hand, the conclusion might be that this provision will work an injustice on small teams who are short of reserves. Since they have not as many substitutes they cannot meet the influx of fresh players sent into the fray by the opposing team.

The fact of the matter is, small teams get a break by reason of this new rule. Formerly a player taken out of the game in one quarter could not go back into action in the same session. Not infrequently small teams playing elevens of size and affluence found themselves in the embarrassing predicament of being shorthanded. Having sent all their reserves in the final quarter, the coach had to sit by and watch his men take a terrific trimming even though they might scarcely have been able to stand up. But under the new arrangement, there can be more interchanges of players, and the natural result will be a constant supply of fresh men going into the game. The weary player can be relieved repeatedly.

Spectators who fear football will be ruined by too many substitutions must not forget that in close games, coaches are unwilling to send in substitutes without good reason. They believe it is poor policy to send a boy to do a man's work, and if the sub were as good as the regular, he would have started the game anyway. If the game is a rout — well, who wants to stay to see the finish?

The most important change is that which permits the ball to be handed forward to a player in the backfield. Many teams have had plays in recent years which flagrantly violated the rule prohibiting a forward pass from less than five yards back of the line of scrimmage. But officials were lax about calling infractions, and little was done about enforcing the rule.

Under the present mandate, a back can go ripping towards the line, and just before he ploughs through, he can hand the ball to a teammate going the other way. Formerly it was necessary to hand the ball laterally or backwards on such a play. Not now. Any lineman, provided he is a yard back of the line of scrimmage and facing his own goal line, may carry the ball when handed to him by a back. This does not mean that guards and tackles will be seen running around like backs. Having a lineman play as a back does not help much, and the chances are there will not be many plays involving linemen handling the ball.

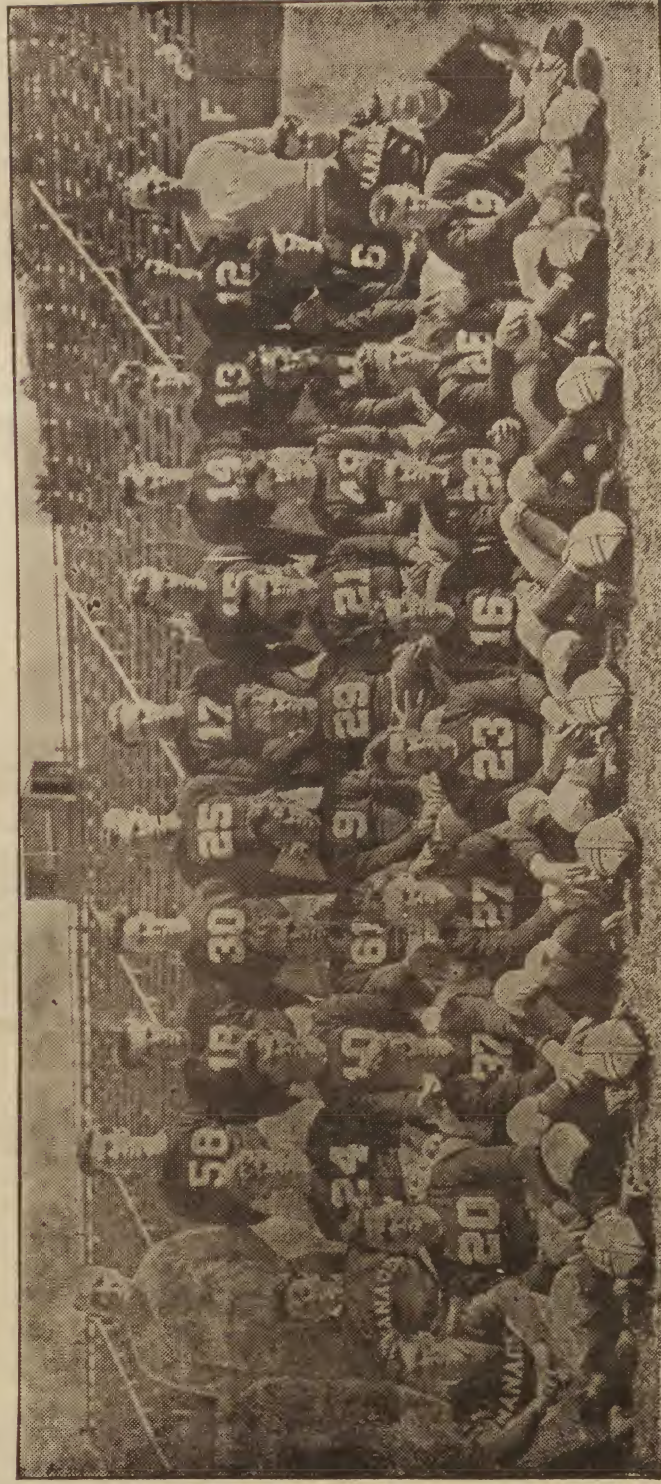

Another important change has to do with the pass. Formerly a fourth down pass incomplete in the end zone resulted in a touchback. If team A was on the five yard line, and had an incomplete pass over the goal line, it meant the other team took the ball on the 20 yard line, — a loss of fifteen precious yards. Under the new rule, the incomplete pass in the end zone is regarded as any other play, and the defending team takes possession at the point where the last play started.

This will encourage passing into the end zone, especially on fourth down. It will throw a heavier burden on a team with its back to the wall, because it will not find itself in such a safe position as formerly, when a fourth down pass went bad in the end zone resulting in a touchback.

The other change has to do with a player of the kicking team illegally touching a ball inside the opponent's ten yard line. This was often done to avoid the ball rolling over for a touchback. Now the rules in such an instance say a touchback is automatically declared when a player touches the ball illegally in this ten yard zone. In other words, it's hands-off the ball when it's bouncing around near the goal line. And that means a break for the receiving team.
